R-34 IS OUT 1,500 MILES AT 12:10 P. M.

HALF HER FUEL HAS EXPLODED

Still Has 1,700 Miles To Blighty. But Conditions Are Favorable
SAILING TIME MAY BE REDUCED TO 60 HOURS
Part Of Crew Are Left Behind To Increase The Fuel Capacity

LONDON, July 11.—The air ministry announced today that at 12:10 p. m. Greenwich time (8:10 a. m. New York time) the British dirigible R-34 wireless her position as 46 north latitude and 39.50 west longitude. She reported that she had consumed half her fuel supply.

The position above is about 1500 miles out from Mineola, L. I. and 600 miles east of St. Johns, N. F.

NEW YORK, July 11.—Bowling along at 60 knots an hour, the British dirigible R-34 was believed to be more than half way across the Atlantic on her return voyage to Scotland early today.

The latest report received by the naval radio station here showed the airship more than 1000 miles out from her starting point, Mineola, L. I. at 11:00 p. m. Greenwich time 7:00 p. m. New York time). Her position at that hour was given as 42.62 north latitude and 52.40 west longitude.

"Speeding at 60 knots for blighty," she wirelessed. "All's well."

Just before leaving Roosevelt field at midnight, Wednesday, Major Scott, commander, expressed confidence that the R-34 would make the 3200 miles in 70 hours. If her present schedule is maintained she will accomplish the trip in nearer 60 hours. She is taking the "southern route" with the prevailing winds directly at her back. Coming over by the "northern route" she required 105 hours and 10 minutes for the trip.

Eight members of the crew left behind at Roosevelt field to make room for 450 gallons additional fuel, will return to Scotland by steamer with the detachment, which assisted American officers and men in preparing for the R-34's landing here.

Rev. Bauer To Speak At Presbyterian Meet
Rev. G. F. Bauer, pastor of the Keene Presbyterian church will give an address Friday evening at a meeting to be held at the First Presbyterian church, Coshocton. This meeting is the last of three being held this week, preparatory to the communion service of next Sunday.

Upturned hull of German battle cruiser "Seydlitz" and German officers and men being taken alongside H. M. S. Ramillies, after scuttling their own craft.

These pictures were taken immediately after the last treacherous act of the Germans—the sinking of their own surrendered navy at Scapa Flow. Between seventy and eighty German warships of all descriptions were scuttled at almost the same instant by their crews, which put off in small boats and were picked up and taken into custody by the British. Under the terms of the armistice, skeleton crews of German sailors were placed aboard the boats when they were surrendered to the allies.

MAX HARDEN TO BE NEXT AMBASSADOR TO AMERICA

Liberal Editor Of Berlin Die Zukunft Is Slated For Washington Post By German Government

BERLIN, July 11.—Maximilian Harden, editor of Die Zukunft and opponent of German autocracy, is being discussed as the new ambassador who will wrestle with Germany's post war problems in America. It is understood that Count Von Bernstorff, who has played a leading role in the counsels of the government for a long time, regards Harden as a favorable man for the Washington post, especially as he entertains liberal views and is believed to be highly regarded in the United States thru his editorial work.

The Berlin government is eager to have diplomatic relations restored with the United States, France and Great Britain. Incidentally the foreign office is undergoing a cleaning out process. "Dead wood" is being weeded out and officials say room is being made for real merit. For instance it is declared that men who have made good in the consular field hereafter will have a chance to enter diplomatic relations positions.

German diplomatic interest in business affairs is indicated by the fact that the foreign office has established a business news agency, which will quickly assemble data about exports and imports and trade conditions in foreign lands. This service will be at the disposal of German business men.

While trade conditions are still disturbed, due to raw material problems and labor unrest German business as a whole is beginning today to cast about for future fields of operation.

Since his mishap, Polley has been receiving treatment at his home, and for some time his recovery was expected. Now, however, his condition is serious and his recovery doubtful.

PACKERS MAY GET CONTROL OF FOOD

Federal Trade Commission Sees Menace In Big Five's Program
THREATEN FREEDOM OF FOOD MARKETS

Reputation Of Packers Is Given Black Eye In Commission Report

WASHINGTON, July 11.—The "big five" meat packers will soon exercise a powerful domination over the nation's food supply and international control of meat products unless congress takes immediate steps to forestall these aims, the federal trade commission today reported to President Wilson.

"An approaching packer domination of all important foods in this country and an international control of meat products with foreign companies seems a certainty unless fundamental action is taken to prevent it," says the report, which is part one of the commission's investigation of the meat industry.

"A fair consideration of the course the five packers—Armour, Morris, Swift, Wilson and Cudahy—have followed and the position they have already reached lead to the conclusion that they threaten the freedom of the market of the country's food products and of the by-product industries connected therewith.

The commission claims the packers are fast obtaining their domination by manufacturing or dealing in 775 commodities, largely by products and by gaining control of 762 other companies many of which are public utility corporations.

"The 'big five' jointly or separately wield controlling interest in 775 companies, a minority interest in 95 others and an undetermined interest in 93," the report continues.

The history of the packers' growth is intertwined with illegal combinations, rebates and with undisclosed control of corporations. The commission urges for publicity with corporate ownership of all industries.

"As to device, for secret control there does not exist adequate law. In its absence unfair competition may run its course to the goal of monopoly and ruin of competitors without the secret ownership being a peccet."

VICTIMS OF AUTO CRASH RECOVERING

Mrs. Seth Kinney and son Harry, Zanesville, who were seriously hurt Friday morning when their auto was struck by the Wheeling and Lake Erie train at Rock Run, are recovering rapidly at the city hospital.

Harry Kinney had the right hand amputated as a result of the accident and was badly bruised and cut. His mother, Mrs. Seth Kinney, was injured about the legs and cut and bruised. Both will leave the hospital in a few days.

LOCAL GLOVE PLANTS ARE RUNNING AT FULL CAPACITY FOLLOWING THE PERIOD OF CURTAILED PRODUCTION

Factories of the Coshocton Glove Company and the Timmons Glove Company and the plant of the Coshocton glove company at Uhrichsville are operating at full capacity following the period of curtailed production in which they operated on a four day basis. Following the signing of the armistice the glove market, as well as other markets, was in an unbalanced position. A drop came and continued for some time. The jobbers refused to buy, believing that the drop had not hit bottom. In that way large stocks of gloves were accumulated in the store rooms of the local plant and it was necessary to cut the production. The rise in the market that came later caused the jobbers to buy as fast

CENSURE WILSON FOR LAYING SOVEREIGNTY ON ALTAR OF LEAGUE

Senator Borah Declares The President's Interpretation Of The League's Powers Is Identical With That Against Which People Have Been Warned To Protest.

EUROPE MUST GET HELP FROM U. S. SAYS FINANCIER

Eugene Meyer, Jr.

Recovery of the European countries from the ruin of war will be impossible without the financial help of the U. S. This is the opinion of Eugene Meyer, Jr., managing director of the war finance corporation of America. He has been studying conditions abroad.

The first step in this direction was the Borah resolution requesting the president to furnish information regarding the reported protest of Lansing, Bliss and White, the other three members of the American peace delegation against giving Japan control of Shantung.

The president's opponents believe, they said today, that they can muster their maximum strength on an amendment to the treaty eliminating or altering the Shantung provision. Before this can be done, Lansing, and perhaps President Wilson will be asked to give the foreign relations committee not only verbal explanations of the means by which the arrangements were arrived at, but the peace conference day by day records in the case.

Formal consideration of the peace treaty will begin Monday by the foreign relations committee. Senator Lodge announced today. Senate debate on it probably will be resumed at the same time.

President Wilson's expression of willingness to appear before the senate foreign relations committee at any time to be questioned concerning the treaty and the league was pointed to by those favoring ratification as evidence of his confidence that the documents cannot be successfully attacked. The president, was said, is quite ready to discuss the problems with his opponents whenever they are ready to meet him.

Administration senators said they were sure that after much verbal battling on the "one treaty and league" would win when it came to a vote. They considered the president, in his speech of yesterday, withheld most of his strong arguments for use later in the campaign after opposition has revealed its line of assault.

President Wilson and senate legal experts were at odds today over the question whether a majority or two thirds vote is required to adopt reservations to the league treaty. Wilson is known to believe that any reservation intended to be a permanent part of the treaty must get a two-thirds vote.

Rules experts disagree. The rule itself says two thirds for ratification and for "all other motions a majority."

He was a member of the General Headquarters Department, serving under General Pershing. His service took him thru many sections of France, Italy, Belgium and Germany, and extended over a period of 18 months overseas. He was in the service 21 months, leaving the status with the 308th Engineers, from which organization he was transferred soon after his arrival in France. Brunskill was formerly a reporter on The Morning Tribune.

GUERNSEY CO. MAN PARDONED

COLUMBUS, O., July 11.—After serving years in the Ohio Penitentiary for a crime that officials now believe he did not commit, John Kristok, Guernsey county, was pardoned today by Gov. Cox, upon recommendation of the state clemency board. He was sentenced in 1913, following conviction on a second degree murder charge. Evidence received since conviction substantiates his protestations of innocence, officials said.

THE FAIR GARDENER

Come into the garden, Maud,
In a cretonne dress to gaze
And a cretonne hat and a cre-
tanne mat
To kneel on as you gaze

But if you haven't all these things,
Believe me when I say,
Keep out of the garden, Maud
You'd better stay away

By MARGARET ROHE

(Written for The United Press)

NEW YORK, July 11.—Mrs. Maud would be given over to bleeding hearts only since the days of Eve, but just since the war. Only last summer farmerettes in trou-rousseaued and hood in these severest, most efficient and practical of garden uniforms. This summer fluffy ruffles and flowery fabrics are absolutely essential to the complete gardeness peace of mind and garden garb success.

One particular new model garden garment is such a fetching affair that any gardeness female immediately starts planting something, if it is only in a window box, so she can qualify to do one.

Made up of a charmingly patterned cretonne of either pink or blue stripes on a cream ground with pink rosebud rosegays scattered hither and yon, this delectable garden dress has short, above-the-elbow sleeves edged with a cuff of ruffled white organdy. The front of the skirt is adorned with a simulated round apron, ruffle edged, that ties in the back with a perky butterfly bow of the organdy and a ruffled surplice of the same sheer material furnishes the snug fitting bodice and is fastened with a little love knot of narrow black velvet ribbon in front. A wide brimmed floppy hat of cretonne with a big bow and strings to tie under the chin of the organdy tops off this practical little workaday garden frock.

It is pretty safe to predict that the garden of the gardeness thus attired

These garden aprons are especially attractive for work in the kitchen garden. Some people think a kitchen garden is a plot of ground where all eligible vegetable edibles are raised, but Mabel, the flat dweller, knows better. Her definition of a really, truly kitchen garden is a green painted, earth filled box in the kitchen window where flourisheth chives for salad, parsley for the garnishing of delicate, cold-cuts, and mint for the juleps while the private stock lasts and after that an ice tea finish. Of course, the idealized sunbonnet is not indispensable for this kitchen gardening.

The cunning hand painted tin watering pots in pastel tints, abloom with flowers even more radiant than the garden grows, the Japanese garden shears, the handy new kneeling pads of Japanese braided straw to keep a fair weeder's dimpled knees from a too intimate contact with the damp and garden mould and artistic flat baskets enameled or stained in lovely shades to swing from the lady-of-the-garden's rounded arm, and hold the garnered clippings and snippings of the garden's choicest treasures are just a few of the attractive first aids that make gardening what it is today. But when you consider the lilies, how they grow, the peas and beans in a row, and then think of the elaborate costumes required for the fair gardeners who make the lilies, peas and beans do thus and so, it certainly seems to take a bit of sewing to do a bit of sowing.

RAPE SEED IN CORN FURNISHES HOG FORAGE

Rape seeded in the last cultivation of corn furnishes abundant nitrogenous feed for hogs if the corn is to be hogged down in the fall. If the corn is harvested by other means the rape still makes excellent fall pasture after the corn has been removed.

Some high protein feed yields best results when fed with corn for most rapid gains, as shown by tests at the Ohio Experiment Station. Tankage and skim milk may be used to furnish the supplements but rape or some other green forage crop, such as clover or alfalfa, will serve the same purpose and often is cheaper.

In seeding rape in corn, farmers generally use from one to two pounds to the acre and it may be sown broadcast or with a grain drill. Sometimes a tin can with a small hole in it is suspended on each side of the cultivator during the last cultivation of corn and the seed distributed in this manner. The Dwarf Essex variety is most commonly grown. Rape sown in July will be ready for hog pasturage by September in average seasons.

PARIS AND THE A. E. F.

PARIS, July 11.—That American soldiers are popular in France directly inversely to their number, is being proved by the attitude of the French public toward the rapidly decreasing American soldiers. Not that the doughboys ever were unpopular, but during the period when the greatest number of Yanks were in France, the keen edge of the traditional French cordiality was considerably dulled.

Two years ago every American in France was acclaimed a hero. The "crusaders" from that little known far away land, Amerique, were hailed as soldiers had never before been greeted. It would be stretching things to say that the American soldiers still in France are equally as popular as those first fortunate arrivals. On the other hand, the doughboys are daily gaining greater favor with the French. This reaction follows a period when Americans were just a bit grating to the French.

During the autumn of 1918, and after the signing of the armistice, when many Americans went out of their way to impress upon the French populace the part that the A. E. F. had played in the war, the popularity of the American soldier suffered a decided slump. Gradually this is working back.

The reception given the first American battalion to parade in Paris on July 4, 1917, was a memorable one, but judging from the reviving popularity of the doughboys, the farewell which the last battalion will receive will outstrip even that other historical event.

Present indications are that some of the last members of the A. E. F. to arrive in France before the armistice will go home the best informed about the places of historical importance in Paris. The early arrivals served during a period when everybody had real work to do and could not be bothered with sightseers. Now, however, when many of the veteran organizations order to be on hand should any happen along, the leave area and the doughboys are strange order was soon forgotten, but reaping the benefit of the elaborate until this spring the rule has been sightseeing bureaus. Every day large scrupulously observed.

FISHING FOR MINES IN THE NORTH SEA

LONDON, July 11.—Eighty U. S. navy mine sweepers are busy today in the North sea at a job almost as dangerous and, from the viewpoint of shipping, quite as important as hunting submarines.

They are clearing away the largest mine barrage in the world. This barrage, nearly 60 per cent American-made and American-laid mines, is about 200 miles long and 45 miles wide. It closes the North sea from Scotland to Norway.

The task has already resulted in a casualty toll of four vessels damaged, one officer killed and others wounded. The U. S. S. Bobolink, the first victim, had her stern blown in by an exploding mine. Lieutenant Bruce was killed. Several other officers and men knocked overboard were rescued. The U. S. S. Patuxent was badly damaged about the stern and the U. S. S. Rall slightly damaged. All were of about 1000 tons. The fourth was a smaller boat.

Captain Sexton, U. S. naval chief of Staff in England, said the Americans are getting "hop" to the undertaking and overcoming many of its difficulties.

Thus far the fleet has covered an area containing 1000 mines. Of these, 45 per cent have been accounted for. Where the remaining 55 per cent are, nobody knows. Captain Sexton estimated the mine hunt would keep the sweepers busy until October or November. It involves a personnel of about 2500.

When the word was first mouthed around thru the ranks that American jobs were going to pick up the mines

Massage this sweetly fragrant lotion into the face, neck, arms and hands each day and see how freckles and blemishes disappear and how clear, rosy and white the skin becomes. Yes! It is harmless and never irritates.

BIG WATER STAR IN ALLIED TOURNEY

Norman Ross.

These two exigencies were provided for on the map under the titles "zone of extreme danger," "zone of possible danger" and beyond that "zone of safety." In addition, there would be a few other mines free-lancing around in all three zones.

The first few days were rather disastrous. Captain Sexton and his staff in London began to dread opening the morning's dispatches. Gradually, with Yankee resourcefulness, the Americans seemed to be getting on top of the jobs, until now Captain Sexton is confident they are going to clean up the assignment with minimum losses.

dent has made its appearance in Ohio, the first reports coming to the department of entomology, Ohio experiment station, from Greenville, O. Only local outbreaks have been reported.

Besides grains and grasses, the insects feed on beans, sugar beets, sweet potatoes, cucumbers, celery, sugar cane and many weeds. The caterpillars feed at night or during cloudy weather, but hide in the shade during the heat of the day.

Where the insects are particularly destructive or in local outbreaks farmers have controlled them with poisoned bait.

One bait successfully used is made by mixing 20 pounds of bran and one pound of Paris green; this mixture is then moistened with a solution of 3½ gallons of water and two quarts of syrup to which has been added the juice and pulp of three lemons or oranges.

Spraying a strip 20 feet wide with arsenate of lead of Paris green around the area infested by the caterpillars will sometimes hold them but the poisoned bran bait is best. Sometimes furrows are made around infested areas with holes at frequent intervals where the caterpillars may be trapped.

SWEET CLOVER HELPS TO MAKE POOR SOILS FERTILE

That changes in farm crop rotations are often necessary to build up the fertility of the soil is the opinion of crop and soil specialists at the Ohio experiment station. They regard it quite necessary to use legumes in the farm rotation, especially in hilly sections or where the soil is low in fertility.

Sweet clover, regarded by so many as a weed, has been found to be especially beneficial in building up the exhausted hill lands frequently found in eastern and southern sections. A rotation of wheat and sweet clover has proven its worth in these sections, the sweet clover being seeded in the wheat during the late winter or early spring. Sometimes a crop of hay may be made after the wheat has been removed and it may be pastured through the next season. To carry out the rotation it is then plowed down in preparation for wheat. Soybeans also have been found profitable, as the wheat following soybeans has averaged several bushels more per acre at the Ohio experiment station than the wheat following corn in rotation. Soybeans are sometimes followed in the rotation by wheat and that by clover.

By using these crops with limestone Ads.

and phosphorus fertilizer in fair amounts many of the poor soils may be brought into a high grade of fertility at a profit, it is shown.

STRASBURG MAN CHLOROFORMED ROBBED OF $43

STRASBURG, O., July 11.—While unconscious from chloroform, administered by a thief, Clarence Mullet, this village, was robbed of $43 while visiting with relatives in Akron the first of the week.

Mullet was sleeping near a window, when at 2:30 a. m., Tuesday, a thief approached the house, pulled the curtains outside, saturated them with chloroform and threw them over Mr. Mullet's face. The thief then gained entrance to the house thru the window, took Mr. Mullet's money and was on his way upstairs when the other members of the family were awakened. The robber, a negro, fled. Mr. Mullet was awakened with much difficulty.

WATCHING THE SCOREBOARD

Yesterday's Hero—Claude Williams, His Loring hopped the White Sox back into first place, defeating the Athletics 3 to 2. The Browns hammered the Red Sox for a brace of victories, 7 to 1 and 4 to 3. The Tigers and Washington made it an even up affair by splitting a double-header, Tigers taking the first 5 to 5 and dropping the second 5 to 7. Roger Peckinpaugh and the Yanks both had tough luck. Peck went hitless in the first time in thirty games and the Yanks lost first place thru splitting a double-header with the Indians.

PREMIUM LISTS FOR COUNTY FAIR TO BE ISSUED BY OFFICIAL

The 1919 premium lists for the Coshocton fair have come off the press and are ready for mailing by W. B. Miller, secretary of the Coshocton fair board. As usual a large number of attractive premiums are offered to Coshocton people for the entry of their live stock, farm products and products and handicraft.

October 7 to 10 is the date set for the 1919 fair. Entries for the exhibits will be closed at 10 o'clock, October 4. A good fair is looked forward to this year. The exhibitors bid fair to be large and numerous.

Besides the regular exhibits there will be side attractions, among the chief being the races which annually attract crowds of spectators as well as horse owners from nearby counties. In the premium list the financial condition of the county fair board is given. The amount of $11,495 was paid out in expenses and premiums for last year's fair and there is now $171 on hand for this year's exhibition. All those interested in the fair, who do not receive lists should send their name and address to Secretary Miller on a post card and one will be sent to them.

SHIP EMPLOYEES GO ON STRIKE

NEW YORK, July 11.—Fifteen thousand ship employees, including engine room workers and others are on strike from Portland, Maine, to Galveston, Tex., stripping coastwise as well as deep water vessels of their crews, it was claimed here today by officials of the International Seamen's union. Ships of the United States Shipping board are exempt under the strike order which calls out only men employed by individuals and private corporations.

The walkout, it was stated, was caused by the refusal of the owners to discuss with the men the question of employing Americans first, and afterward, union men. Representatives of the ship owners said they had no power to enter such an agreement. Demands of the men include recognition of the union and more pay. Ship owners refused to discuss the situation.

COUNTY FARM TESTS

Tests carried on at the substations and county farms operated by the Ohio experiment station at Wooster show that some soils require special varieties of farm grains to produce most economically. An example of this is shown in the fact that Turkey Red wheat has yielded quite poorly at the Ohio experiment station, but at the Paulding experiment farm it has proven to be one of the best varieties for that section. Varieties of soybeans have given similar results when tried out experimentally.

Ohio now has 13 county and district experiment farms besides the main station at Wooster where many of the original crops investigations were started. These investigations were later extended to the outlying farms in order that the problems of local communities might be worked out.

Ohio is now regarded by other states as having a most efficient and practical means of solving farm problems thru the use of county experiment farms.

MEXICAN OIL AND AMERICAN MONEY.

Since the beginning of the Great War it has been the custom of a certain type of American newspapers to assume a "holier than thou" attitude in discussing the nations involved on both sides in the war.

With bland and complacent ignorance of our own past, it is the wont of these papers to accuse European nations, many of which are not larger than a Montana or California county, of "land hunger" and of being actual or potential "land grabbers."

With a complacency which would be laughable, were it not tragic, these papers never weary of telling how disinterested this country is; how it seeks the territory of no other nation; how there is nothing we hope to gain out of the war in a material way; and how other nations should model their careers after our disinterested policies.

The truth is, and these papers know it, we have been the most insufferable land grabbers in all history. From a thin fringe of colonies on the Atlantic seaboard we started on a century of land grabbing which was remarkable alone for its impartiality and included in three brief generations the annexation of considerably more than 2,000,000 square miles, the most rapid physical growth ever manifested by a single nation under the sun.

In fact, land grabber is the Anglo-Saxon's middle name. And the other fact that he is the most remarkable colonizer and administrator of any race the world has yet developed does not gainsay the former. We might as well admit it and cut out our ignorant and complacent self-satisfaction when comparing ourselves with other peoples and races.

Is there any wonder, after 1848, that Mexico should be suspicious of us? Is there any wonder that South America, after Colombia's experience at Panama, should entertain like fears of our intentions?

Even now an attempt is apparently being made to create trouble between Mexico and the United States over what is alleged to be the harsh and unfair treatment of American oil well owners by the Mexican government. State Department officials at Washington are quoted as saying that the action of Carranza soldiers in driving out workers attempting to drill on land owned by Americans constitutes an "overt act."

Perhaps a brief study of the facts of the case might be of some value here. In 1917 Mexico adopted a new constitution with some of the most radical provisions to be found in any modern state document. One of these provisions is that "all natural resources" are declared to be the property of the state. Going further, coal and oil deposits are specifically declared state property, tho this reservation of oil rights does not prevent the ownership of "superficial soil" above such deposits by private individuals. The right to exploit oil deposits may be granted by the state to individuals, who are then required to pay taxes for the privilege, the title to the oil deposits remaining in the state.

This law apparently operates in exactly the same way as regards native Mexicans, citizens of the United States, and all other foreigners of whatever nationality. But there is another section of the constitution which does limit the rights of foreigners. It provides that foreigners wishing to "acquire possession of lands or waters or to obtain concessions to exploit mines, water rights, or combustibles" may only have such permission granted them if they appear before the secretary of foreign relations and agree to be considered as Mexicans in respect to the titles involved in other words, no foreigner may own land in Mexico unless he renounces the right to call upon a foreign government to aid him in protection of his rights.

The American owners of oil well concessions in Mexico declare that the provision of the Mexican constitution of 1917 declaring oil to be state property is confiscatory. To this a Mexican lawyer, writing unofficially on behalf of his government, replied in a note in May, 1918, transmitted through Ambassador Fletcher, that with the adoption of a new constitution all preceding and contradictory laws must necessarily become inoperative. This note quoted the confiscation of property in Negro slaves in the United States by a constitutional amendment as an example, it might today with equal point quote the confiscation of the property of brewers and distillers under federal prohibition.

The American "property" which is confiscated by the new Mexican constitution is, however, more potential than real. It is prospective profits from wells rather than actual buildings and machinery, with which American capitalists are concerned. Nor can we complain of any discrimination against Americans as compared with other foreigners, nor, indeed, against any foreigners as compared with natives save in the requirement that they renounce the right to demand armed intervention by their governments.

It may be that the present Mexican constitution is objectionable to so many people in the United States that we will start a war for the purpose of having it changed, but, if so, let us at least know the truth about it; let us understand why we are fighting and what we expect to do when we have conquered.

DAILY LETTER. etao etainonno NEW YORK, July 11—Thots while wandering around Manhattan. There's Doon Byrne, the Brooklyn short story writer, talking to Burns, the detective. New kind of a store on Broadway. Sells only electric fans. Oliver Herford always wanted more than anything else to throw an egg into an electric fan. Grove Patterson has the best ambition of all. Wants to jump off a shed roof into a bathtub full of ice cream.

Low fields lurching on the Knickerbocker porch. Hear he's a riot in his new play. Mary Miles Minter leading a white collie. Wonder if dogs have souls? Wilberforce said that we have the right to conclude that animals—some of which have been as dear to us as man—will find their place in the Paradise of God.

Little tea shop advertises Scotch comes filled with berries. Fine bit of food. Funny sign in front of the cabaret place. "Cheek-to-cheek Dancing Barred." Man blinking at the day light is a subway track walker. Spends 12 hours in darkness every day in the bowels of the earth.

There's Capt. Simson. Born in Calcutta. Speaks Hindustani. Cousin wrote "The Mountain Maid." Been running in London for three years. Little cafe in the cellar is where Clemenceau used to eat. Have to know you before they will serve you.

Wonder if its true about cocaine being sold openly by waiters in the dance halls? And yet they won't let them have beer. Funny world. Think I'll go to the Solomon Islands. No laws there. Just fish and swim all the time. Fifth Avenue millionaire has a swimming pool at his bedside. Dives out of bed every morning. Says it cured him of indigestion. If I had that much money I'd get something with more class. Gout for instance!

Great line of Will Rogers. Says Wilson will have to be kept in one of the derelictization camps until they "de-house" him. Think I'll turn back here. I'm in a tough neighborhood. Thank I'll whistle.

Coney Island with beer at 20 cents a copy—is not the crowded bedlam of yore. Those who can afford to go to Coney at the present prices of food and soft drink can just as well go to some of the more exclusive resorts. Coney seems to be the magnet for hitherland visitors and that is all. The most popular attraction there is "Underground Chinatown." It is weird.

The police were called into a tenement house on the East Side the other day by an anxious mother who wanted to complain about her husky son. He refuses to work and smokes about 100 cigarettes a day. I wouldn't want to take any chances on him escaping."

Style and other more concrete things have changed the figure of the American woman within the last few years. The waist line of the past has vanished and other alterations have taken place, but the dress forms of a year or so ago, on which women's clothing was made, are more conservative and can't be changed. DON'T SPOIL YOUR HAIR BY WASHING IT

When you wash your hair, be careful what you use. Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali, which is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

The best thing to use is Multisilf coconut oil shampoo, for this is pure and entirely greaseless. It's very cheap and beats anything else all to pieces. You can get this at any drug store, and a few ounces will last the whole family for months.

Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in, about a teaspoonful is all that is required. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, cleanses thoroughly and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, bright, fluffy, wavy and easy to handle. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff.

Where Can I Find Relief From Itching, Terrifying Eczema?

Question on Lips Afflicted.

There is a harassing discomfort caused by Eczema that almost becomes a torture. The itching is almost unbearable, and the skin seems on fire with the burning irritation. A cure from local applications of salves and ointments is impossible, because such treatment can only allay the pain temporarily. The disease can only be reached by going deep down to its source, which is in the blood, the disease being caused by an infection which breaks out through the skin. That is why the most satisfactory treatment for all so-called skin diseases is S. S. S., for this remedy so thoroughly cleanses the blood that no impurities can remain. In the meat industry, the commission stated, the "big five" already constitute a monopoly. In 1916, they slaughtered 82.2 percent of all cattle, 86.4 percent of all sheep; 76.8 percent of all calves and 1.2 percent of swine. Stock yards controlled by the "big five" received percentage of the country's stock in 1916: Cattle, 83.1; sheep, 78.1; calves, 78.8; swine, 74.1; horses and mules 84.8; total of all animals 77.2.

Their average monthly holdings of non-perishable meats as compared with the country's total supply were: frozen beef, 95 percent; smoked ham and bacon, 64 percent; dry salt pork, 69.8 percent; pickled pork, 70.5 percent.

The packers handle half the poultry, eggs and cheese business of the country. In 1916 they sold 90,000,000 pounds of butter; 75,000,000 pounds of cheese; over 125,000,000 dozen eggs, and 100,000,000 pounds of poultry.

The "big five" own 90 percent of all the refrigerator cars in the country. From two branch houses in 1884 they now have 1,120 branch houses. They control 54.7 percent of frozen and chilled beef exports from Argentina and Uruguay.

Other commodities the commission charges, packers are gaining control of the breakfast foods, chicken feed, stock feed, fruit, canned vegetables, coal fence posts, builders hardware, binding twine, lumber, cement, lime, plaster, brick, sand, gravel, roofing, soda fountain supplies and rice.

"J. Ogden Armour" the report said, besides being a great financial power, is also a prominent factor in the American International Corporation, with its shipping and shipbuilding interests, its import and export companies; its interest in a company organized to develop cattle raising and meat packing in South America, its control of a large tea importing company and a sugar machinery corporation and its minority stock in the United Fruit Company.

The report also pointed out that the Armour Grain Company has 25 percent of the elevator capacity of Chicago and Kansas City, two of the largest grain markets, and operated over 90 country elevators.

Centenary Celebration Columbus OHIO

Positively Closes Sunday, July 13

Described by William C. Freeman, Associated with Paul Block, Inc. New York, Chicago, Detroit, Boston

One of several policemen on duty at the State Fair Grounds where the Centenary Celebration has been in action since Friday, June 27th, day and night—remarked that he did not know why he and other officers had been assigned to this work because he and there was really nothing for him and the other officers to do—except, perhaps, to assist those who might be overcome by the heat.

Quite a tribute to the behavior of a great crowd of people—averaging over 40,000 a day—since the Centenary Celebration opened—is it not?

The city of Columbus, with its 250,000 population, could not sustain an average attendance in excess of 40,000 daily—therefore, many thousands of visitors had to come and did come from small sections of the country.

As an illustration, on the train from Chicago to Columbus, I met a man and his wife and three children, who lived in North Dakota. They were on the way to attend the Centenary Celebration. As a matter of fact I met people from practically every state in the Union.

The great crowd—over 120,000—that attended the Centenary Celebration on July 4th expressed itself as mightily pleased that the attendance exceeded that at the Prize Fight, Toledo, by more than 70,000.

The world sure does move on, and it seems to be moving in the right direction.

The most remarkable scene I have ever witnessed was that on July 4th and 5th when thousands upon thousands of people patiently stood in line under a broiling sun waiting for an opportunity to purchase an admission ticket to see the GREAT PAGEANT, written by Rev. Dr. J. E. Crowther, and wonderfully staged.

Another remarkable thing about this Pageant is that the story it tells is founded on life as portrayed in the Bible—and yet thousands of people wanted to see it and did see it, filling the great Coliseum, with 7,500 seating capacity, every time it was presented.

Another outstanding feature of the Centenary Celebration is that it assembled so many striking attractions, that D. W. Griffith—one of the Masters in Motion Picture life—kept a force of experts at the State Fair Ground for more than two weeks taking motion pictures that will introduce patrons of movie picture houses all over the world to the really wonderful events that were a daily part of the exposition.

The Victory Parade on the evening of July 4th, in which over 8,000 people took part was a realization of a dream of ten years ago when the managers of this Centenary Celebration conceived the idea that it would be an inspiring event to show the people of America what had been accomplished by Methodist missionaries in foreign lands.

It is a striking statement that there were as many people in this parade—remember the number, 8,000—as the Methodist missionaries had converted during the first fifty years of their efforts in heathen lands.

And now it is equally striking to say that converts are made at the rate of 10,000 a month through this one great agency alone.

And think of 50,000 people witnessing this parade! Think also of 7,500 people plunging into the Coliseum to see the big Pageant at the same time! Think also of the big tent being filled to capacity at the same time where people went to hear "Rocky" Jones, the Great Southern Brawler! Think also of the moving picture houses filling up with interested and eager crowds at the same time!

But the one great outstanding feature that covers far and above all others is this:

The Centenary Celebration has brought together in a splendid bond of unity the North and South in visions of the Methodist Church which have been separated in their activities for many years.

And this fact, coupled with the approval given in no uncertain terms to the Centenary Celebration and its big motive power in the religious structure of the representatives of other RELIGIOUS FAITHS, is more significant.

A celebration was started on Friday and ended on the 13th and started to advertise on Friday and ends its 15th advertisement today, Friday, July 11th—marking a fitting supersession and a fitting ending colors and a glorious success.

Money And Lives Given By The French Nurses

PARIS, July 11. Forty-five women nurses of the Union des Femmes de France have been in the field of battle in the trenches or as the result of disease contracted in their work during the course of the war according to the final report of the society on its entire war activities.

The "Union des Femmes de France," corresponds very much to the American Red Cross, except that its membership is limited entirely to women and all of the work carried on during the war was done purely by women, with no material or financial help from men and very little financial help outside of money raised by the women members themselves.

The final report of the society is therefore a remarkable tribute to the role played by the French women in the Red Cross part of the war.

Out of a total of 50,000 members (all women) over 60,000 dedicated their entire time to the various establishments founded and conducted by the society during the war. These included 265 auxiliary hospitals, and scores of nurseries, dispensaries, soldiers homes and canteens, schools for the reeducation of mutilated soldiers, and tuberculosis camps.

Over 20,000 members of the society served as nurses and it was amongst

GIRLS' BALL TEAM STARTS EXCITEMENT IN WEST LAFAYETTE

A unique baseball game was played at West Lafayette, Wednesday evening between two teams composed of girls. The teams are the All-Stars and the Athletics.

In Wednesday's game the All-Stars won, defeating the Athletics by a score of 13 to 12. The teams were evenly matched and in the series of games that are planned for the near future some close contests are expected.

Irene Geese and Anna Simmons starred for the All-Stars and Chloe Myers for the Athletics. Miss Myers pitched for the Athletics and did some splendid work.

The line-up follows: All-Stars: Irene Geese, captain; Anna Simmons, Margaret Snedeker, Violet Snedeker, S. Turner, J. McCreary, W. Reed, Sarah Howell, Faye Lawrence. For the Athletics: Chloe Myers, captain, Bees Stiner, Norma Turner, Ina Summers, F. Myers, M. Marquand, Nellie Owens, Marabie Gaskill and W. Dwyer.

The score was as follows:

All Stars	13	9	4
Athletics	12	7	5

SOX FIGHTING HARD FOR THE A. L. PENNANT

NEW YORK, July 11.—Admiration must be expressed for the gritty struggle being put up for the American League championship race by Kid Gleason and his White Sox.

The Yankees have been choked out of first place for the time being and the Chicagoans have ascended. The main difference between the two clubs seems to be a vast amount of nerve, largely in favor of the Sox.

Gleason was three pitchers—real ones—while Miller Huggins is able to trot out a young army of slammers, all of them more or less stars. But with his trio Gleason is showing great finesse.

The Yankees undoubtedly are the class of the league, so far as figuring a baseball club for its real worth is concerned, but there are circumstances which compel attention of the fact that Kid Gleason is manipulating the reins over an organization that will carry the fight to the last ditch.

Williams, Cicotte and Faber are carrying the burden for the Gleason gang, with only occasional assistance from Shellenbach, Kerr and Danforth. Huggins is able to throw Quinn, Thornhill, Shawkey, Shore and Schneider into the fray in regular order, and he has to fall back on Russell, Mordridge, O'Dell and Nelson, anyone of whom would be welcomed with a brass band by about seven other clubs.

The going is bound to be tough for the Yankees. Gleason's fighting spirit is sure to keep them in the fight to the end. They will put up an awful battle.

GANG DEFEATS PRESBYTERIANS

The Gang (United Brethren) defeated the Presbyterians in a loosely-played ball game at the Catholic diamond Thursday evening. Nine to two was the score with which the Presbyterians were defeated.

The Gang had no trouble in taking Coach Callahan's team over in easy fashion.

Their team work was marred by many errors that were costly in the total score.

Friday evening the Trojans will meet an all star team at the Sea Park. This game will be one of the hardest the Catholic aggregation has come up against this season.

Weaver or McKee and Carnes will be the battery.

Carnes who has done some excellent pitching for the Catholic team this season leaves Saturday for his home. Friday's game will be the last local contest in which he will participate.

Hot Tea and Frozen Cream Very Constipating

THERE is little inclination for solid food on a hot day. Cold drinks and ices, salads and pastry form much of the diet, especially among women. This lack of wholesome variety, however, interferes with proper digestion.

The result is biliousness, listlessness, dizzy spells. The cause is constipation. The stomach could not digest nor the bowels pass off the day's strange mixture of food and drink.

A simple way of overcoming the trouble is this: If you have not already got Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin in the house, go to a drug store and buy a 50c or $1 bottle. Take a teaspoonful tonight before you go to bed. It will act in the morning, and immediately thereafter your head will be clear and that feeling of oppression will be gone.

Syrup Pepsin is a combination of simple laxative herbs with pepsin. It acts on the stomach-muscles training them to do their work naturally so that medicines can be dispensed with. It is the most widely used laxative compound in the world. That means merit.

A free sample bottle can be had by sending your address to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 480 Washington St., Monticello, Ill.

DISORDERS of the stomach and constipation are the most common diseases of children. To correct them you will find nothing better than Chamberlain's Tablets. SHOOTING NOW AT TARGETS, NOT MEN

BISLEY CAMP, ENG. July 11.—After four years Boche-shooting British crack riflemen resumed their annual warfare against mechanical targets today, when the National Rifle Association's competition re-opened here. The famous Bisley meeting is international in character and normally attracts the world's best rifle and revolver shots, although most of the events are monopolized by army teams.

This year demobilization progress considerably affected the entries, many eligible riflemen being frankly "fed up" with shooting, and finding target practice unexciting after the real thing. Nevertheless most of the British and Colonial champions were present when the qualifying rounds were shot off. Australian, Canadian, New Zealand, South African, Ceylon, and Malay States teams competed with the pick of the Mother Country, there being keen rivalry for the Elcho Shield, for teams, and the King's

HOBSON AT THE M. E. CENTENARY

COLUMBUS, July 11—Captain Richmond P. Hobson, of Alabama, naval hero of the Spanish-American war, is the feature attraction today at the Methodist Centenary Exposition. Hobson will be the principal speaker of Inter-Church Day.

Special programs were being held during the day for West Virginia and southern states.

Plans are being formulated by exposition officials to stage "The Wayfarer" pageant in New York some time in October. The largest theater in New York would be secured, if possible, and an entirely new caste selected.

Saturday, the last stunt day of the exposition, will have as its attraction Sergeant Alvin C. York, of Pall Mall, Tenn., "the one man army" and Lieut. Commander A. C. Read, the man who flew the NC-4 across the Atlantic.

TWO YOUTHS DIE IN CRASH

CLEVELAND, O., July 11—Police today were making a thorough investigation of the circumstances of a traffic crash here last night in which two boys were killed and 16 injured. The accident happened when a truck, carrying the boys, members of the Boy Scout Naval Reserves, was struck by an interurban car, hurling it fifty feet.

WAUKEGAN, ILLS—Parkes and Parkes, florists, closed today. Mrs. Augusta Parkes, president, sued Ezra Parkes, secretary-treasurer for divorce.

COLUMBIA, CALIF.—Silo owners who prefer the kick to the taste, are worrying over prohibition. "Silence," the juice of ensilage corn, is said to have a Dempsey wallop, compared to whiskey. But it tastes bad.

NEW YORK—Mrs. Lemuel Miller shut her eyes, breathed a soft farewell and let one of the few surviving quarts of champagne fly—a "tee" Christening for the Yaphank, new ship.

PATERSON, N. J.—A man tried to run over a horse and wagon that got in his way, another admitted being "soberly pickled." Both swore 2 1/2 beer did the trick.

CHICAGO—Sixty million ants face death by sneezing. After Pled Piper methods failed to rid the city of the pests, somebody phoned this tip: "Use cayenne pepper."

His Redemption

By GENEVIEVE ULMAR

(Copyright, 1914, by Western Newspaper Union.)

"I must have done it—the witness probably speaks the truth. Perhaps it would be best to shut me up away from the world for a time. I will take my punishment like a man."

And like a man Blake Arnold faced judge and jury, nor defiant, nor resentful, nor grandiloquent, but with contrition, shame and submission in his face. There was little doubt that while under the influence of strong drink and lured on by specious tempters he had forged a check upon his former employers to pay off a gambling debt.

"Five years in the state penitentiary at hard labor," was the sentence, and the prisoner simply bowed his head and did not lift it as he was led away. Then it was to sweep the courtroom with one swift, probing glance. His face fell. If he hoped to find a friendly or familiar face there he was doomed to disappointment.

Wild, reckless spendthrift that he was, he had reached the end of his rope. A year previous, urged on by his riotous acts, his father, a man of wealth, had turned him out of his home and disowned him. Six months later the parents of his fiancée, sorrowful, but loyal Lettie Vivian, had told him that she had been sent away to distant friends where he could not find her and that all was over between them.

More latterly Lettie had accepted the decision of father and betrothed. He had plunged into new recklessness. They were doubtless aware of his predicament, but no one had extended a helping hand. As a common criminal, Blake Arnold was shut out from the world as a branded man, and stolidly, doggedly accepted the dull, lifeless routine of prison life.

And all the time poor, pining Lettie passed her days in vain longing for a sight of the only man she had ever loved and her nights were tearful ones. She could not forget, and she told her parents so. Practically exiled with an aged aunt, she faithfully kept her promise not to write to Blake, and when his final downfall was announced in the public prints her aunt found her staring at the dread intelligence in a dazed, stony way as if a final blow had prostrated her.

"My poor, suffering dove!" sobbed the gentle-spirited woman. "Do not become utterly heartbroken."

"No," answered Lettie quietly, "I shall only wait."

"You will wait?" repeated her aunt vaguely.

"For his release and his redemption. Both will come in time. His love for me can never die. It will purify and save him. We shall meet again—sometime, somewhere."

Two years had passed by when the United States entered the war. Lettie found some relief from her anguish by contributing her services to Red Cross home work. It was late in the year when her aunt, opening a morning newspaper, stared, paled, and hastening furtively into another room, thrust the newspaper into a blazing grate. She had read in the journal of the escape from prison of Blake Arnold, an honor convict, whose good conduct entitled him to a remission of his sentence and whose case had been favorably regarded by the pardon board.

So Lettie mourned on and dreamed on, all unaware that the man she could not forget was free. Her aunt fretted and feared for many weeks, dreading the possible appearance of Blake in quest of Lettie. He did not come, nor did any letter, and the months rolled on.

It was late in the year when the boys came marching home. There was a fragmentary contingent of a regiment which had displayed the highest valor in one of the most desperate battles of the war. The son of the governor of the state was in the group, and the idol of the regiment was a soldier, Berton Arleigh, who had saved the life of the young man and had led a forlorn hope that had turned the tide of the conflict. Berton Arleigh had been terribly wounded and was on the convalescent list when what was left of the valiant regiment reached the home town.

The people of the capital could not do enough to honor these men, and the son of the governor had invited Berton Arleigh to become his guest. One day and night the young man remained in the palatial home of the officials. The next morning he sought a private interview with the governor.

"I think it best to quietly leave you without the knowledge of your son," he said, and then to the amazement of his father he disclosed his true identity. He was Blake Arnold, and the intense patriotism of his nature, the keen willingness to redeem the past by giving his life for his country, if necessary, had influenced him to surreptitiously leave the prison.

"You are more than a hero," declared the deeply moved official. "You will remain here my honored guest until I gather up the scattered strands of your broken life and cement them anew."

A pardon, rehabilitation in all men's eyes and a meeting with Lettie—these elements were stages in the plan of the father of the soldier boy who owed his life to Blake Arnold.

Albert Harrison, Indianapolis, Ind., was in Coshocton Wednesday on business for the United Press association.

The Old
Homestead

By ALDEN CHAPMAN

(Copyright, 1914, by Western Newspaper Union.)

"I don't seem to please her," spoke Martin Frey to his old-time friend, Judge Bartlett.

"Well, Mary is not a demonstrative person," said the judge. "Don't get a lot of nonsense into your head, Martin. You have provided a beautiful home, the children are healthy and happy—what more can you expect?"

But Martin Frey sighed and shook his head, and although he did not pursue the subject it remained in his mind. He had married Mary back at their home town, Leighton, twenty years since. Never had there been a more loyal and industrious helpmeet. And now, only a month before he had confronted Mary with the surprise of her life.

For years he had planned it—the building of a model home as good as any in the town. He had cherished the idea, saving, scraping for nearly a decade. He had never let Mary even surmise what he was at. When the beautiful house was all completed and newly furnished he had appeared in a brand-new automobile and had piled in the delighted children, with the brisk, cheery hail:

"Come, Mary, I'm going to take a drive."

And then, as they reached the new home he had so proudly acquired, he drew a key from his pocket, handed it to her and said, grandly waving his hand toward the pretty house:

"There's your new home, Mary, and no one ever deserved one as you do."

Mary was pleased, there was no doubt of that. She admired all the fine points of the handsome residence and her eyes brightened as they noted the comfortable and even luxurious furnishings.

"You are a good man, Martin," she said, and her voice quivered with emotion, and then she kissed him, and his heart warmed toward her.

For all that, as time went on, Martin noticed that Mary did not seem to exactly fit into her new environment. They were able to keep a maid now, but Mary was wedded to her old housekeeping ways. She missed the old kitchen stove and the shining gas range troubled her. She missed washing the children every Saturday night in the old-fashioned wash tub.

"It's beautiful, Martin," she would say, "but I can't help thinking of the old home back at Leighton. Don't you remember the view from the old open piazza there, just far and grand? And the cool well water, and the honeysuckle vine, and the little schoolhouse just beyond our lot?"

"I do, indeed," Martin would reply, "and it's the sweetest picture in the world in my memory. But why have changed, Mary. And the old place? Twenty years—why, I suppose Leighton is just a bustling little city now, and you wouldn't recognize it, with all the old landmarks gone."

Still Mary cherished her dream. It was not difficult to convince her that the children were given great advantages under the new order of affairs, but the old home seemed to beckon her. It was a shrine in memory and devotion and she longed for a sight of it once more. How much, Martin never knew until Mary was under a spell of sickness. He was spelling the nurse one evening and seated in the half-darkened room where Mary lay, when he knew from her restlessness that she was fevered and incoherent. He caught some words that enchain attention and interest. In her delirium Mary fancied she was conversing with an old-time girl friend.

"I don't want Martin to know, dear," Mary was murmuring. "He is so good and kind to me, but it has seemed to me for years that the greatest boon I could ask would be to visit the dear old home again. If it is only to freshen my memory and help the longing I cannot repress, it would be a blessing to me. I hope some time before I die Martin will visit Leighton and I will get my wish."

"You poor, romantic, sentimental dear! That you shall!" whispered Martin to himself, and until the day far ahead when Mary regained her old strength the idea never left his mind. The glad look in her eyes fully repaid his care and thoughtfulness, when he one day announced that he was going to take a trip to Leighton in the automobile, children and all.

With eager, expectant eyes Mary leaned from the vehicle as the machine turned into the street where she had passed her early childhood. Surely her face lost its token of delight. There were oases where the houses of her youth had been. The old-time green lawns were gone. The quaint, well-remembered little schoolhouse was occupied as a repair shop, the grand valley view shut out by the smoke of great factories, the honeysuckle vine was no more, and the house, always so neatly painted and kept, seemed ready to collapse with the first strong wind and was given over to poor mill workers.

Mary drew down her veil to hide her tears. "We had better go on," she said forlornly, and was very quiet all the way back to their starting point. That evening she was more kind and gentle than ever to the children, and she placed her arm about her husband's neck when they were alone.

"Martin, dear," she said, as she kissed him fondly, "I have learned a lesson—home is where love is; and, oh, I am so content and happy!"
